IDEAS FOR FLOAT COMBINATIONS

HI-SUPPORT UPRIGHT FLOAT WITH SADDLE + UPRIGHT TOGGLE FLOAT + ANKLE WEIGHTS

Marc has CP. He has poor neck and head control and hyperextends strongly. He is quiet in the water. Mum wants Marc to sit upright in the water without her holding him. The Hi-Support Float with Saddle (Item 9504S) in combination with the Upright Toggle Float (Item 9501TS) gives Marc the posterior support he needs. Ankle weights (Item 9527H) further secure an upright position for Marc in his floats.

ITEM 9504S

ITEM 9501TS

SQUARE FLOAT WITH SADDLE + SWIM RING + ANKLE WEIGHTS

Terrell has CP. He has better neck control than Marc, but a lot of big head movements. During trunk flexion, his mouth is at risk of entering the water. The Square Float with Saddle (Item 9396XS) does not provide enough support on its own, for Terrell. When we added a small inflatable ring (Item 7187), Terrell got all the support he needed. His legs were kept slightly apart by the saddle and his ankles were weighted to secure an upright position.

ITEM 9396XS

ITEM 9527H

ITEM 7187

SQUARE FLOAT WITH SADDLE + NECK COLLAR + ANKLE WEIGHTS

When Terrell just wants to chill, the adjustable straps on the Square Float with Saddle (Item 9396XS) are lengthened. This lowers him chest deep into the water. The Neck Collar (Item 9401C) offers support and comfort around his neck and head. The Ankle Weights (Item 9527H) pull his legs down into the water enabling him to maintain an upright position. The soft, wide sides of the float allow him to nestle inside it and relax.

SQUARE FLOAT WITH SADDLE + NECK COLLAR + SWIM PANTS

Dean has an Acquired Brain Injury resulting in poor control over his body movements. Dean is well-supported in his Square Float with Saddle (Item 9396L) and Neck Collar (Item 9401A). The floats position Dean during hydrotherapy and enable his therapists to work with him on passive stretching exercises to reduce his stiffness, improve his range of motion as well as perform some muscle strengthening exercises. The floats have Velcro openings which allow for easy accessibility. Dean feels secure in these floats and relaxes in the warm water. He also wears adult-sized swim pants (Item 9568AL) for extra security.
